Connections by Maggie Durand is a series of writings encompassing relationships of the meaning of life, death, and the Hereafter. Personal experiences of the author are woven into each writing as a basis to account for her belief in Christianity. The reader is encouraged to think of his or her own experiences in life and how they connect with all in this world and lead ultimately to the end of the path for us in this life. One is meant to lsquo;read between the linesrsquo; and search for events that have happened in onersquo;s life that may be similar in event or meaning in these writings.As this author does not believe there is any point to arguing theology or theocracy, the simplicity of these writings is to encourage onersquo;s faith, spur one to contemplate the path of onersquo;s life, or consider that perhaps there is a Creator who has a purpose in lsquo;connectingrsquo; one to people and events in onersquo;s life which may be a link to an afterlife and explain the meaning of this life. The one element the author leaves open is the gift of free will, which gives us the freedom to choose which path we will take at crossroads. But even this is debatable, if one wants to argue predestination. Please enjoy, contemplate, and may you live in peace believing that all that happens in this life is for an everlasting purpose. And to those of you who are experiencing extreme situations, may you see them as a test of your faith in Him.
